Letters and Papers Copied and Transcribed from Locust Grove

*Locust Grove - 1765 Homestead of Scots-Irish Settler William Sproul
~ Brick House built circa 1805 ~*

Many Sproul family letters and documents have been hidden away at Locust Grove for years, dating back to before the Civil War. These documents contain fascinating stories of loving relationships, life in the Confederate Army, school and college interests and activities of young folks, and family illnesses and deaths. Through the capabilities of today's computers and the facilities of the web, these papers can now be made available to all family members.

Catalog of Letters

The Catalog lists all the letters, documents, and collections of items, generally by type of document, associated persons, date, and brief description. Clicking on any document title takes you to that document, often containing both a copy of the original and the transcribed document. (click on the blue title)

Further Documents for Transcription

There remain hundreds of Locust Grove letters available for transcription. Perhaps 100 of these have been kept at Locust Grove and are listed in Parlor Letters. Several boxes of family documents were removed from Locust Grove in 1962 for safekeeping and are now in the possession of Dan Stickley Jr.'s daughter, Carolyn Bragg of Stuarts Draft, who is making them available to the family as needed for transcription. These are listed in Kackie Box 2.
